

MUSCAT PEDIGREE DIAGRAM

While many varieties with a Muscat aroma are not genetically related, this pedigree of natural crosses headed by MUSCAT BLANC À PETITS GRAINS and MUSCAT OF ALEXANDRIA reveals those that actually constitute a true 'Muscat family'. In the case of unknown (and probably extinct) varieties (?), the inverse relationships are also theoretically possible (see p x).

● Italy ● Italy or Greece ● South America ● Spain ● England